

COLLEGE ADMISSIONS IN TODAY'S RECOVERING WORLD

with Nancy Steenson, College Admissions Coach, in partnership with John Hancock Investment Management

WHAT: College admissions requirements are changing—and not just because of the pandemic. Many schools had already begun moving away from SAT and ACT test scores as a key determinant. Learn about what's important now, including:

- Transcript: Your child's grades are more essential than ever.
- Essays: What differentiates your child? Here's the opportunity to communicate it.
- Extracurricular activities: Quality, not quantity, is increasingly what matters.

WHEN: Wednesday, October 27 at 12pm PT

About Nancy Steenson

Nancy is a graduate of Tufts University, served on the Timberlane Regional School Board for six years, and was chairman for two years. She also served on a number of committees, including the Curriculum Committee. Nancy is passionate about education, and has always advocated for strong academics in the public school system in order to prepare students for college. She believes that many students and parents underestimate the college admissions process, and works with students to market themselves by sharing underutilized strategies that help them stand out from the thousands of other applicants. With her guidance, students have been accepted into very selective colleges and top programs in their field.

Nancy works out of her home in Danville, NH and is a member of the New England Association of College Admission Counseling (NEACAC) and an associate member of the Independent Educational Consultants Association (IECA).
